ROMANS, AZTECS AND NORTH CAROLINIANS

Student Gives the History of Each as Regards Their Attitude Toward Roads—Legislation in North Carolina.

Correspondence of The Journal.

Rockingham, July 20.—We are supposed to be the cream of civilization, yet in some respects we are far from deserving that honor. For instance the road conditions that we have all over the country today tend to prove this when we compare ours with what we call the dark and middle ages and even the ancients could teach us facts about good road building.

The Romans were the greatest road builders of ancient times. The Appian Way, named after the censor, Appian Claudius, was the first road they built and on account of its excellence was called the "Queen of Roads." In the zenith of Roman glory twenty-nine imperial highways radiated from the golden mile-post in Rome to the uttermost parts of the Empire, thus came the proverb, "all roads lead to Rome." These roads were five yards wide and the surface was three feet thick, that is the material that the roads were made of. These roads were indestructible and yet remain throughout Italy today. A living monument left to tell the story of Rome's greatest splendor, yea a monument left by so called barbarous people, to the twentieth century "society bears" to remind them that good roads were of great benefit to a barbarous people, then how much more benefit will it be to us, society dwellers that want to go every where and mingle with our neighbors. Those old Roman roads can't be duplicated today for less than $50,000 per mile. These roads, in places, were elevated above the adjacent land and were then protected by stone parapets. Roman roads were the best and only roads in Europe for about two thousand years. Ah! true, they left foot prints on the sands of time for us to follow and now we are just starting. Better late than never, always.

There is another barbaric road story that would be of credit to us to take a hint and follow. The Incas in Peru built a system of roads that compare with those of the Romans well. The Incas even built their roads at an elevation of twelve thousand feet. Now which are the real barbarians these Romans, Incas or ourselves?

Now after this ancient historical sketch, I will give a sketch of historical road work in North Carolina. As early as 1819 a Board of Internal Improvements was authorized, which recommended the adoption by the State of a regular system of public roads to be known as "State roads", "County roads" and "private roads", but no permanent improvement on any of the public roads was begun until the passage of what is known as the "Mecklenburg Road Law" in 1879. This was enacted as a general State law, but at the time passed, it applied only to three counties—Mecklenburg, Forsyth and Stokes. It provided for the working of public roads partly by taxation, partly by the old labor system and partly by convicts; but, even in this modern form, it was ahead of its time and in 1881 it was repealed. It was re-enacted by the legislature of 1885, and since that time, though applied, in full to but few counties, it has been the source of much of the best road legislation and road work in the State.

Capt. S. B. Alexander of Mecklenburg county, who secured the passage of the Mecklenburg county road law, helped to build the splendid system of macadam roads for which Mecklenburg county has become known all over the country. The pioneer advocate, however, of State aid in road building was Prof. Joseph Austin Holmes, former State Geologist of North Carolina.

No substantial state aid was given, however, until legislation of 1909 passed an act appropriating $5000 annually to the Geological and Economic Survey to be used in the educational work and giving road engineering assistance to counties. The legislature of 1913, at its regular session, passed about 57 road bills, all of local nature except one. This latter applied to all but four counties and made it possible for any township in any county to vote upon a bond issue up to $5000 for public road construction. Today a State highway is the talk and that is a fine thing. The idea of the State highway began with the passage of the bill by the legislature of 1911, authorizing what is known as the Central Highway to start at Beaufort Harbor, Currituck county, and extend through nineteen counties of the State to the Tennessee line. Now this same legislature authorized also the Wilmington-Charlotte highway, which is being talked of so strongly today. If this Wilmington-Charlotte highway, and the Pinehurst highway connecting with our W. A. and International here in Richmond county, can be built, then North Carolina will lead the United States in road building. Now that all necessary legislation is done it only remains with the masses to have good roads leading all over the State. I believe Union and Mecklenburg are doing their best, while Mecklenburg has her part already built it will probably have to be repaired.

This that I have written is history and what our legislature has done. The North Carolina Good Roads Association, organized in 1902, has waged a vigorous campaign for good roads throughout the State and has helped to organize County Good Road Associations in sixty-five counties. Whoop-er up for good roads, North Carolina will soon have the best system of roads in the Union. If we can't build as expensive roads as those ancients, let's build some that we can travel at least. Richmond county has a little over half of her roads sand-clayed now and every day that passes more are being built.—The Student.

The "temporary prosperity" which Candidate Hughes talks about seems to please many of his followers, who are piling up millions. Even the "temporary" is better than the "g. o. p. gave us."—Williamston Enterprise.

The Tallest Stalk of Corn.

Smithfield Herald.
Last spring Mr. S. H. Massey bought some seed corn of a prolific variety and planted six rows across his garden. Now Mr. Massey, who is not a tall man, is wondering how he will save the fodder. Every stalk of it is tall. Yesterday morning he brought to the Herald office one stalk which has two ears on it and measures sixteen feet and eight inches high. It will take a tall man to reach high enough to cut the tops from this corn.

SHOULD SLOAN'S LINIMENT GO ALONG.

Of course it should! For after a strenuous day when your muscles have been exercised to the limit an application of Sloan's Liniment will take the soreness and stiffness away and get you in fine shape for the morrow. You should also use it for a sudden attack of toothache, stiff neck, backache, stings, bites and the many accidents that are incidental to a vacation. "We would as soon leave our baggage as go on a vacation or camp out without Sloan's Liniment." Writes one vacationist: "We use it for everything from cramps to toothache." Put a bottle in your bag, be prepared and have no regrets.

Progressive Colored Farmer.

Statesville Landmark.
Costin Murdock, a colored citizen of Vance community, Chambersburg township, was showing The Landmark yesterday a sample of his Irish potato crop. The potatoes are very large and fine, grown from home-raised seed, and Costin thinks he will get 40 bushels or more from a fourth of an acre. The crop was raised with little expense, he says—little fertilizer being used and the potatoes cultivated like cotton.

Biliousness and Stomach Trouble.

"Two years ago I suffered from frequent attacks of stomach trouble and biliousness," writes Miss Emma Verbryke, Lima, Ohio. "I could eat very little food that agreed with me and I became so dizzy and sick at my stomach at times that I had to take hold of something to keep from falling. Seeing Chamberlain's Tablets advertised I decided to try them. I improved rapidly." Obtainable everywhere.
